Editor Corner:

October is upon us and the stores have pumpkins out on display. In the last three weeks the 8 deer that have spent the summer laying in my yard have gone from their summer red coats to their dark gray winter coats. Fall is here and winter is fast coming on its heels.

As a child my fourth-grade teacher told us about her growing up in a small community in the Midwest going out on Halloween and saying tricks-for-treats. No, I did not mistype tricks-for-treats. According to our teacher, children did tricks for the treats they received. Weather it was reciting a short poetic verse, sing a short song, or doing a magic trick to get the treat. Of course, times have changed.

Halloween or Hallowe'en (a contraction of All Hallows' Evening), also known as Allhalloween, All Hallows' Eve, or All Saints' Eve, is a celebration observed in a number of countries on 31 October, the eve of the Western Christian feast of All Hallows' Day. It begins the three-day observance of Allhallowtide, the time in the liturgical year dedicated to remembering the dead, including saints (hallows), martyrs, and all the faithful departed.

It is widely believed that many Halloween traditions originated from ancient Celtic harvest festivals, particularly the Gaelic festival Samhain; that such festivals may have had pagan roots; and that Samhain itself was Christianized as Halloween by the early Church. Some believe, however, that Halloween began solely as a Christian holiday, separate from ancient festivals like Samhain, Halloween activities include trick-or-treating (or the related guising), attending Halloween costume parties, carving pumpkins into jack-o'-lanterns, lighting bonfires, apple bobbing, divination games, playing pranks, visiting haunted attractions, telling scary stories and watching horror films. In many parts of the world, the Christian religious observances of All Hallows' Eve, including attending church services and lighting candles on the graves of the dead, remain popular. although elsewhere it is a more commercial and secular celebration. Some Christians historically abstained from meat on All Hallows' Eve, a tradition reflected in the eating of certain vegetarian foods on this vigil day, including apples, potato pancakes, and soul cakes.

October Car History – October 6, 1888, Daimler Licenses U.S. Rights: William Steinway, a member of the piano-making family, acquires the rights to build Daimler cars in the United States.

October 26, 1954, Small Block Chevy Introduced: The future of Chevrolet and of high-performance American Cars is secured with the advent of the light and powerful 265 Chevrolet.

27 October 1947, London Motor Show Opens: Postwar high-performance motoring is really born at the London Motor Show with the introduction of the fabulous new Jaguar XK 120.

Thank-you Dallas for sending me the following:

The Goldberg Brothers - The Inventors of the Automobile Air Conditioner - Here's a little fact for automotive buffs, or just to dazzle your friends. The four Goldberg brothers, Lowell, Norman, Hiram, and Maxwell, invented and developed the first automobile air-conditioner. On July 17, 1946, the temperature in Detroit was 97 F degrees. The four brothers walked into old man Henry Ford's office and sweet-talked his secretary into telling him that four gentlemen were there with the most exciting innovation in the auto industry since the electric starter. Henry was curious and invited them into his office. They refused and instead asked that he come out to the parking lot to their car. They persuaded him to get into the car, which was about 130 F degrees inside. They turned on the air conditioner, and cooled the car off almost immediately. The old man got very excited and invited them back to the office, where he offered them $3 million for the patent. The brothers refused, saying they would settle for $2 million, but they wanted the recognition by having a label, 'The Goldberg Air-Conditioner,' on the dashboard of each car in which it was installed. There was no way that old man Ford was going to put the Goldberg's name on two million Fords. They haggled back and forth for about two hours and finally agreed on $4 million and that just their first names would be shown. And so, to this day, all Ford air conditioners show -- Lo, Norm, Hi, and Max -- on the controls.
